OUR STORY

The journey of Phoenix begins in 1976, when an advertisement in the newspaper showcased the sale of a plastic factory. The dying embers of the machinery piqued an interest in Mr. Omar. He took his son to see the injection molding factory, something neither had ever seen before. Mr. Omar's vision always led him toward the new and exciting. After playfully bidding, they acquired not just a factory, but a lifelong business and passion.

As the machines got refurbished, and other challenges were tackled, a vision for a new company emerged. The once dilapidated factory became a household brand, known and adored by every Sri Lankan.

Like a phoenix rising from its ashes, the company became a hotspot for entrepreneurial vision. It made many valuable partnerships along the way, which have been key contributors to the company's rise today. With over 40 years of industrial experience, Phoenix has expanded exponentially.

For the Omar family, Phoenix has been a guiding light; a springboard for many future successes, ventures and adventures. Phoenix is about resurgence and resilience.
